Hauptmann Defense Is Studying Plan to Oppose State's Income Charges

Defense Plans To Produce Evidence Showing Hauptmann Had Sizeable Bank Account Prior to Kidnapping and Ransom.

Hauptmann Relaxes in Jail Over Week-End as Wife Pays Visit and Denies Planned Outburst.

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press.)
Flemington, N. J., Jan. 19.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense explored today a maze of money, drafting evidence from his financial accounts to oppose the state's testimony that he had a mysterious income of $49,960—only $40 less than the Lindbergh ransom figure.

Wading through Hauptmann's bank and brokerage statements during the week-end trial recess, granted by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard for this very purpose, defense attorneys said they would show Lindbergh ransom notes failed to appear in a single one of the accounts.

Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense, took pains to bring out that before the kidnapping the Hauptmann bank accounts already showed sizeable deposits, evidences of the frugal habits of the Bronx carpenter and his pale, care-worn wife.

The state took immediate steps for a counter-attack. Attorney General David T. Wilentz asserting that on the eve of the ransom payment, the Hauptmann balance in one bank was only $203.90, and that a year later, the amount had swollen to $2,528.35.

Basing its case further on a contention that the money banked was change from the ransom notes, the prosecution established that in another account in a Mount Vernon, N. Y., bank, the Hauptmann deposits were known for their number of silver coins.

Hauptmann himself, after a week of emotional climaxes during which he exploded against the state's accusations, relaxed in his cell, free for two days from appearances in the crowded court.

Smiling broadly in anticipation of the brief period of seclusion, before resuming his part in the judgment on his life for the slaying of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, he talked cheerfully to his wife Anna through the screen door of his bull pen.

Mrs. Hauptmann brought him word of their son, Manfred, who is with relatives in the Bronx. The mother did not go to see him this week-end, preferring to stay near her husband.

The accused man was proud of her, she said, for her outburst in court yesterday against a former friend and neighbor, Mrs. Ella Achenbach, who was testifying that Hauptmann and his wife took a trip on the day of the Lindbergh kidnapping, March 1, 1932, and that Hauptmann had a leg injury when he returned.

"Mrs. Achenbach," she cried, "you are lying."

She insisted that the outcry, following by a single day a similar denunciation by her husband of another state witness, was not contemplated in advance.

"How could I plan it?" she said. "I didn't know she was coming."

As for Hauptmann's reaction to her action, she said:

"My husband is always proud of me."

This week-end recess in the trial—the third Saturday off, though Justice Trenchard was still intent on pushing it through quickly to a conclusion—gave the old Hunterdon county courthouse but one day of rest.

The first week-end, Sheriff John H. Curtis let visitors inspect the court both on days; the second, deciding it was too much for his men, he permitted no visitors, but this week-end he struck a happy medium, deciding to permit sightseeing Sunday only.

The Flemington Rotary Club, proffered the services of its members as voluntary police and guides.

For the eight good men and true, and the four good women and true of the jury, there was the prospect of repetition of their diversion of last week-end—a bus ride through the countryside.

Justice Trenchard, however, attentive to the possibility that a sick jury might mean the work of weeks would end in a mistrial, admonished the jurors not to so unless the weather was favorable, and:

"If you do go, even in fair weather, be sure to get wraps enough so that you will not expose yourselves to cold."

Expressing gratification at the progress of the trial, Reilly said he believed the state would rest its case Monday or Tuesday afternoon.

"The defense will then open its case on Wednesday," he said. "We have on our list about 50 witnesses, and we expect it will take about a week and a half to complete our case."

"Mr. C. Lloyd Fisher will make the opening address to the jury and I will render the summation."

"Our first witness will be Hauptmann himself, and I expect that he will be on the stand under direct and cross-examination for about one day."

The state intended to resume Monday the final phases of its case—the ransom money trial leading to Hauptmann's arrest.

New President of Local Kiwanis Club

Annual Installation Service and Ladies' Night of Kingston Kiwanis Club Held Friday—Dan Chase Was Guest Speaker.

MORRIS SAMTER.

The annual installation service and ladies' night of the Kingston Kiwanis Club, looked forward to each year with pleasurable anticipation by those who are privileged to attend as one of the most pleasant affairs of the winter social season, was observed at the Governor Clinton Hotel Friday evening. The attendance of club members and their wives and guests showed an increase over last year, 133 covers being laid for a chicken dinner that was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

A very pleasing entertainment program had been provided. In addition to the interesting installation service and at the conclusion many availed themselves of the opportunity to participate in the dancing to music by Zucca's orchestra.

One of the first entertainment numbers put on by Zucca was the "Herpicide Quartet," composed of Robert Service, Edward Bonesteel, R. Frederick Chidsey and W. A. Van Valkenburgh. Zucca announced that their rendition of a verse of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," represented "before taking." A second quartet composed of William F. Leehive, G. Wallace Codwise, Joseph P. Stout and Charles Snyder was put on to give the "after taking" effect. Still the result did not seem to be all that had been expected and a third lot—Mayor Heiselman, Harry Halverson, Clarence Schoonmaker and Dan Chase, the guest speaker of the evening—was added and a third attempt was made. It was finally agreed that the medicine was a failure and that the only hope was in an operation.

A telegram expressing his regret at being unable to attend and extending congratulations, was received from George H. Cadz, governor of this Kiwanis district, and was read by Morris Samter.

Chester A. Bailez, who presided as toastmaster, asked Mrs. Clarence L. Dumm and Mrs. Jay W. Rifenbary to select the winner of the ladies' attendance prize. It was awarded to Mrs. Ruth Corban. The men's prize went to Harry Halverson, retiring president.

The following, who have a record of 100 per cent for attendance at meetings during 1934, were awarded prizes: Edward Bonesteel, Lewis Brown, William Byrne, R. Frederick Chidsey, H. Clinton Finger, Harry Halverson, Clarence Schoonmaker, Robert J. Service, Joseph F. Stout, George B. Styles and Paul Zucca. In addition Lewis Brown was presented with a handsome cake, as the occasion was his birthday anniversary.

Agricultural Head Satisfied With Job

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—Faced with the possibility of ouster from his position as commissioner of agriculture and markets, Charles H. Baldwin feels "he can leave with the personal satisfaction of a job well done."

"The commissioner of agriculture," Baldwin said last night in his first statement in connection with the legislative proposal to reorganize the department which he heads, "is the executive officer of the department, carrying out the policies that are laid down by the council of agriculture and markets. ... I can leave the commissioner's position any day with the personal satisfaction of feeling that I have done my best to apply practical home sense and to be fair to all; and from long experience I know it is a difficult position which presents unusual problems, especially during these unsettled times."

The sharp bite of sub zero temperatures was in prospect for much of the United States today as winter staged a new onslaught on the heels of a north-west blizzard.

In the Pacific west, from the Yukon to California, a howling Alaskan blizzard was responsible for thirteen dead or missing. Four of the missing were in an airplane lost to sight in the bitterly cold Yukon territory.

The mercury in the Pacific northwest slipped to a low of 57 degrees below zero, snow buried most of Oregon and closed schools in Washington, and paralyzed transportation. Further east in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin the prospect of the season's bitterest cold was waited. Zero temperatures existed there already.

The cold and snow has headed into the midwest and Oklahoma, where cattle men took steps to guard their livestock. The cold snap was expected to be felt tomorrow as far east as the Ohio valley and upper Great Lakes regions.

The eastern seaboard felt the nip of near zero weather today, but with prospects of rising temperatures over the week-end. Maine was digging out of a ten inch snow fall, with additional snow forecast for New England and the east.

Boston reported a minimum of 6 degrees with a forecast of 20 degrees tonight. New York state temperatures held in the low figures. Rome reporting seven degrees below.

New York City had a low of 14 degrees, with rising temperatures and probable snow or rain tonight and tomorrow.

City in Grip of Zero Temperature

At 6 o'clock this morning the recording thermometer at the City Hall Registered 4 Degrees Above Zero, While Thermometers in Other Sections of the City Registered Zero.

Colder weather gripped the city on Friday night, and this morning zero temperatures prevailed in Kingston. Early Friday evening the weather gradually grew colder and at midnight the thermometer at the city hall registered 10 degrees above zero. From then on it gradually grew colder until the low of 4 degrees above was recorded.

It continued close to the zero mark all morning today, and those who were forced to work outdoors felt the cold severely. The street department continued a large force of men at work today clearing away the snow that had fallen on Thursday.

Mais Faces More Questions of Police

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Robert Mais, notorious gang leader, faced further questioning today regarding recent escapades of his "rit-state" gang and a reported plot for a series of kidnappings.

Mais was reported to have admitted to federal authorities that he had planned the kidnappings, in which Simon S. Neuman, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., distillery executive, was to have been the first victim.

The 29-year-old gang leader and four members of his gang, including a woman, were arrested yesterday in a roundup by federal agents.

Mais and Walter Lagenza, his lieutenant, who is among those being held, will be arraigned today as fugitives from justice. They will probably be held for the state of Virginia to answer for the death of a prison guard in their sensational escape from a Richmond prison in September of last year.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP).—The position of the treasury on January 17 was: Receipts, $5,402,232.44; expenditures, $20,430,921.63; balance, $2,412,112,244.31; customs receipts for the month, $1,362,427.78. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $1,934,257,635.72; expenditures, $2,454,422,424.62 (including $1,950,802,734.66 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $1,460,281,268.71; gold assets, $1,272,270,181.78.

Decision Postponed

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—A decision on the proposed transfer of Dutch Schultz, gangster, to New York City to face trial was postponed today when federal authorities revealed that Attorney General Homer Cummings will seek to try Schultz in Albany for income tax evasion.

Auburn, Me., Jan. 19 (AP).—Willie Southwick, Lewiston, Maine, charged with murdering Joan Edlin, his sweetheart, was back in jail today, held without bail to await the March term of Androscott county superior court.

Three Killed In As Many Gun Battles In New York Case Against Valentino One Critically Wounded

One Police Officer Killed In Hold-up Attempt, Cab Driver Killed, Vagrant Dies In Gun Battle, Brother Wounded.

BANDITS CAPTURED

All the Holdup Men Were Captured Following the Gun Fights, and Charged With Homicide.

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Three gun battles, in each of which police took a part, left three persons dead and one critically wounded today.

Patrolman James M. J. Killian was fatally wounded in an exchange of shots with four men who attempted to hold up a leather goods store at Fifth avenue and 45th street last night. The four holdup men were captured.

A few hours later, Albert Musgriff, a taxicab driver, was shot to death in Brooklyn in a battle between two policemen and three gunmen who had forced him to drive them away from a holdup. The trio surrendered.

Slept in Station

The third shooting occurred early today at a Long Island City elevated station when two brothers resisted the attempt of police to arrest them as vagrants after they had been found sleeping in the station.

The brothers, Joseph and Samuel Farugia, started shooting at the police who returned the fire. Joseph Farugia was fatally wounded. His brother, with a bullet wound in the abdomen, threatened to shoot himself if the police approached and as one of the patrolmen walked toward him he placed his gun against his head and fired. He is in a critical condition at the hospital to which he was taken.

Bandits Surprised

The shooting of Patrolman Killian came after he and Patrolman Walter B. Curtis had surprised the four bandits as they were holding up the leather goods store.

The four gave their names as Ray Orley, 20, Thomas Rooney, 22, and Amerigo Angelini, 22, all of New York, and Newman Raymond, 22, of 113 East Belfonte avenue, Alexandria, Va. All were taken to police headquarters today and charged with homicide.

Police said they had confessed to committing twenty holdups within the last few months in which they collected over $6,000 loot.

Those held in the Brooklyn shooting, which followed the holdup of a drug store, said they were William Gibbons, 21, John Dolan, 18, and Albert Ryan, 16, all of Brooklyn.

20-YEAR-OLD WIFE DENIES BRANDING 2 CHILDREN

Keene, N. H., Jan. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Florence Stoddard, 20-year-old wife of a Chesterfield farmer, today denied branding her two step-children with a hot poker, a charge upon which she awaits arraignment in municipal court.

Sheriff Frank J. Bennett and Deputy Sheriff Henry A. Frechette arrested the 20-year-old woman yesterday on a warrant charging torture. Frechette said he had been informed of the alleged branding by Selectman Paul Penning of Chesterfield. He would not reveal the source of Penning's information.

The allegedly branded children—Irene, 10, and Percy, 6—will be witnesses at the court hearing, Frechette said. They remained, meanwhile, in seclusion.

Frechette said Mrs. Stoddard burned the children several times on January 7 and threatened them with further punishment if they told of the alleged torture.

Our Growing Population

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Seche of 119 Greenlark avenue, a son, Thomas Alfred, at Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stephano of 108 North Front street, a daughter, Patricia Jane.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Levy of 171 Hasbrouck avenue, a son, Harry, at Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Bruck of 96 Murray street, a son, Ronald, at Kingston Hospital.

Government Rests Its Case Against Valentino On Counterfeit Charge

Marlborough Man Is Charged with Passing Counterfeit Money on August 7 Last at Young's Auto Service in Milton.

TROOPER ON STAND

Defense Attorney Fails in Attempt To Discredit Sergeant Baker.

New York, Jan. 18 (Special).—Assistant United States Attorney John W. Burke, prosecuting Frank Valentino of Marlborough for the alleged possessing and passing counterfeit money, rested the government's case this afternoon after putting two more witnesses on the stand today.

The first was Sergeant Norman A. Baker of the State Police, who with three other troopers went in search of an Auburn car whose license number was telephoned to them by Ely Baxter of Ed Young's garage at Milton after Baxter decided that a bill given him by the owner of that car when purchasing gas was counterfeit. Baker definitely and vehemently contradicted Baxter's statement, made yesterday, that he hadn't made an identification of the man prior to coming into court. Baxter had said that he had paid no particular attention to the man and would not be able to recognize him again if he saw him. He merely remembered his approximate height and weight.

Sergeant Baker, however, said that Baxter previously not only said he was sure of the man but positively identified Valentino as the man but picked him of a group.

Baker said the four troopers went out in two cars and caught Valentino at Marlborough, Mass. After taking him back to Milton to be identified by Baxter, he said, they took him to Highland where he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Hasbrouck and finally took him to jail in Kingston.

Fails to Discredit Baker

Valentino's attorney failed in an attempt to discredit Baker through suggestions that he was prejudiced and that he had other motives in prosecuting the case. He said:

"Your father-in-law runs a hotel in New York City."

"Yes," answered Baker.

"And you play cards there, don't you?"

"I do not."

"He runs a card room, doesn't he?"

"Not as far as I know."

"It's in your territory, isn't it?"

"Surely."

"If I produced witnesses here to testify that they had seen you playing there and had played with you?"

"I'd say they were lying," cut in Baker sharply.

"Have you any dislike for Italians?"

"No."

"Any prejudice against those who are called 'wops'?"

"None at all."

Further detailed cross-examination as to Baker's outside activities and the arrest of Valentino, appeared to annoy and bore the witness and his answers came sharp and decisively to questions that he thought particularly immaterial or petty.

The government called one additional witness, Gerald C. McGinnis, secret service operative, connected with the treasury department. He identified the bills as counterfeits and testified that any layman could tell that they were spurious. Asked how one could tell in a case where the bill was old, he said: "By feeling it and by looking at it generally. For instance, there are two or three threads in government notes and none in this."

The government rested. Counsel for Valentino then strove for nearly two hours to obtain a dismissal of the complaint on numerous grounds.

He contended that there was nothing in the case to indicate the defendant knew the bills were counterfeits.

Judge William Bondy denied the motions, saying: "I'll instruct the jurors so clearly that there will be no doubt about it that if they find that the defendant did not know the bills were counterfeit he is not guilty. Otherwise all of us would be guilty of counterfeiting at one time or another."

Too Late to Withdraw

Counsel for Valentino then asked the court for permission to withdraw the plea of not guilty but the court denied it saying it was too late.

The defense began its case this afternoon by calling Paul Ateneo, a chauffeur, now unemployed, residing near Marlborough, and John Portera of the Bronx to the stand.

The men told of playing cards with Valentino on the night of August 7 at the Marlborough Social Club. Their testimony appeared to conflict as to the games played, who played with them and how long Valentino was in the game.

Both the court and the district attorney investigated their stories closely. Ateneo said they were playing poker.

"How many cards are there in a deck?" asked Judge Bondy.

"Forty-eight," was the response.

"How do you know it was on the night of August 7?" inquired Burke.

"Because we had a blowout."

"What was the occasion for it?"

"No occasion. We just got together to play."

Asked about other dates, he answered not to clear. He said that August 7 stood out because of the blowout and the fact that Valentino was arrested two days later.

Several other witnesses for the defense, including John Valentino, himself, will testify Monday.

Conflicting Opinions On Certified Raw Milk Supply

Gold Case Decision May Come on Monday

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP).—Nine supreme court justices—minus their black robes—were expected to gather today in a plain basement room of the capitol to seek agreement on the $89,000,000,000 "gold clause" cases.

Behind doors zealously guarded, the court—if it followed its regular schedule—engaged in informal discussion on the cases which pose the question whether the New Deal monetary structure is reared on good legal bedrock or the sands of unconstitutionality.

Whether or not a decision would be reached today, the world must wait a while for the public announcement. Aside from a possibility, that the decision might be handed down next Monday it was not expected until February 4—for a recess intervenes.

Though many observers did not look for the announcement until February 4 because the writing of opinions after the court makes up its mind is a somewhat lengthy process, others pointed to some major cases of the past in which the judges announced a verdict.

Many believe the ruling may rank in history with the Dartmouth College case and the Dred Scott decision. The question is whether the government acted constitutionally in suspending the clause requiring payment of gold or its equivalent on some $100,000,000,000 of public and private obligations. If the government loses, the securities would call for payment of $169,000,000,000 in the present, devalued dollar.

Carpino Youth Died At Kingston Hospital

Had Been Taken Ill With Others In The Family After Eating Homemade Sausage at the Home in East Kingston—Two Others in Critical Condition and Remaining Two Reported in Fair Condition

One fatality was recorded at midnight in the family that was taken ill after eating some homemade raw sausage at the family home in East Kingston, in the death of John, Carpio, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carpio, who died at the Kingston Hospital where he had been taken with four other members of the family when they became critically ill from eating the sausage, which was raw and homemade.

The dead youth had been the first one of the family to become seriously ill, and four others were seized shortly afterward.

Charles Carpio and his sister, Mrs. Henry Hana, are reported in critical condition at the hospital, while the condition of Louis Carpio and his brother-in-law, Henry Hana, is reported as fair. The dead youth was the second youngest in the family.

Thomas Carpio, another brother, who had been seriously ill with pneumonia at the hospital, has recovered sufficiently to return to his home.

Moody, Impeached, Defies Legislators

Blamark, N. D., Jan. 19 (AP).—Governor Thomas H. Moodie, Democrat, today contemplated legal steps to clarify the effects of an impeachment action voted by the North Dakota House of Representatives. The Senate will likely act on the question Monday.

Meanwhile, the governor struck back at his political opponents today, posting guardsmen to prevent seizure of his office.

With the posting of two guards, both without uniform, the governor said he planned to take "useful" legal steps to defend his rights, and issued a statement charging that the impeachment proceedings constituted an "effort by malicious, political rascals to take charge of the government of this state" eleven days after he had assumed office.

A deputy from the sheriff's office was busy today taking inventory of the stock, which with the exception of sportswear, will be sold at a sheriff's sale, January 24, according to present plans.

The Kantowitz clothing store, 40 North Front street, was closed this morning by Sheriff John Sax under an execution issued against Noelle and David Kantowitz. The execution was obtained by Attorney Frank W. Brooks, the amount involved being $2,263.

A deputy from the sheriff's office was busy today taking inventory of the stock, which with the exception of sportswear, will be sold at a sheriff's sale, January 24, according to present plans.

Asked about other dates, he answered not to clear. He said that August 7 stood out because of the blowout and the fact that Valentino was arrested two days later.

Examining Board's Contention That There is an Adequate Supply of Certified Raw Available Supported by Dealers.

BUTTERFAT CONTENT

William Mellert Admits Butterfat Content is Lower Than That Obtained from Ulster Dairy.

The pros and cons of the question whether Kingston has available an adequate supply of certified raw milk has drawn the milk dealers and examining board into two distinct sides of the question, some of the dealers being of the same opinion as the board that certified raw milk is plentiful as against the contention of certain dealers that concern is felt for a possible shortage, should the two grades of pasteurized milk now being commonly used in the city prove unacceptable to the taste of the milk drinking public.

The board believes that there is an adequate supply available and this contention gains impetus with the announcement of William Mellert that "I can furnish the city with all of the raw milk that it will need."

Mr. Mellert said that he was obtaining milk from a concern outside of Ulster county, having the contract for all certified milk from this company to be sold in the city, but added that he did not make money from this contract, the only reason for his having it being, "To simplify the bookkeeping of the out of town concern."

He explained that he was already furnishing certified raw milk to several other dairymen in the city, who got their supply from him at the same price as he paid for it himself.

Questioned about the butterfat content of the certified raw milk he was handling, Mr. Mellert admitted that it was lower than the same type milk obtained from an Ulster county dairy, the only other source of supply at present, according to information available.

"However," said Mr. Mellert, "the butter fat content is in a more nearly correct proportion according to my advice from several physicians, who have told me that too high a butter fat content impairs easy digestion."

The board of Health is of the same opinion as Mr. Mellert as far as the supply is concerned, according to an announcement made earlier in the week in which it was stated that the "supply is plentiful," and added that besides a concern at Highland which was furnishing certified raw milk, that the Winston farms at Saugerties had made application to sell the same type milk. In addition the Board of Health stated that available supplies were obtainable from out of the country but easily reached points.

Against these contentions is the opinion of several of the city's milk dealers, one of them being among the largest distributors in this section, who stated that they have been unable to obtain adequate supplies of certified raw milk from the Highland farm, and that producers in other sections prefer not to do business with them fearing that the market here would prove temporary as compared to the market, they have already established elsewhere.

When and if the Winston farms obtain the right to produce certified raw milk it is believed that the supply from county dairies will be of a quantity sufficient to care for most of the needs of the city.

Dall-Boettiger Rites Simplest

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP).—In a century and a quarter of hovering over the executive mansion, cupid seems never to have presented so nonchalant a bride as the honey-mooning Anna Roosevelt Boettiger.

Three presidents, five presidential daughters, and two president's nieces have been married in the White House, or from it, since Dolly Madison staged the first stylish wedding there March 11, 1811, with her widowed sister as the bride.

Not one of them was so simple as Anna's—no attendants, no bridal bouquet, a traveling suit so unobtrusive her mother couldn't describe it afterwards. She even tossed aside the title "White House bride" by choosing her old New York home for her marriage yesterday to John Boettiger, former White House correspondent of the Chicago Tribune.

It took columns to describe the flowers and the guests and the gowns at most of those other weddings.

The menu of the Nellie Grant wedding was printed on white satin. Alice Roosevelt wore a train of silver brocade six yards long. There were 15,000 buds and blossoms in the wedding bell which hung over the head of Emily Platt, niece of President Hayes.

Floral Display

Floral ingenuity apparently reached its height in the wedding of President Cleveland, only president to be married in the White House, to the beautiful Frances Folson June 2, 1886. In the Blue Room, where the ceremony took place—

"The fire-places were filled with red begonias to represent burning fires, with centaureas scattered at their base to imitate ashes, while blossoms were laid below in the form of tiles. One mantel-piece was banked with dark panicles, bearing the date in light candles; the other with red roses, bearing the monogram, 'C.F.' in white roses."

President Tyler married Julia Gardiner in New York, June 26, 1844, and feted her handsomely when he brought her back to the White House.

The late Ike Hoover, for 42 years White House usher, wrote a whole book chapter on the exquisite wedding of President Wilson to Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt at her home in 1915.

But "Princess Alice" Roosevelt's wedding on February 17, 1906 to the late Nicholas Longworth still stands as an all-time high for flowers, number of guest-dignitaries, and dazzling display of gifts.

Anna Dall has kept the Roosevelt tradition of record-smashing. If President Theodore Roosevelt's daughter had the most elaborate wedding, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's daughter had the simplest.

In Westchester?

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger were on a brief honeymoon today, believed to be secluded somewhere in Westchester county.

Boettiger and his bride, the former Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, vanished after their surprise wedding yesterday and all efforts to locate them were unavailing.

THE TRAIL OF 'HOT MONEY'

The map above charts the course of the Lindbergh ransom bill, the "hot money" which may definitely pin guilt in the Lindbergh kidnapping upon Bruno Richard Hauptmann in his trial at Flemington, N. J. The money was delivered by the Corn Exchange bank, Fortson branch (1) to the home of Francis D. Barlow, friend of the Lindbergh family (2) on E. 64th street, Manhattan. From there it was taken to the home of Dr. John F. "Jesse" Condon (3). Dr. Condon handed over the ransom money to "John" at St. Raymond's cemetery (4). The first ransom bill turned up at a bank at 90th street and Amsterdam Ave. (5); then at a filling station at 127th St. and Lexington Ave. (6); and at the Mount Morris branch of the Corn Exchange bank (7). Bruno Hauptmann was arrested on Tremont Ave. in the Bronx (8) where ransom money was taken from his person and later from his home on 222nd street (9). Other ransom notes turned up at Mt. Vernon (10), Tarrytown (11), Newark (12), Ulster (13), Cherry Valley (14), Albany (15), Troy (16).

What Forensic Boy

In Harris women shrouded in black dresses (below) purchase tiny silver pins of gold with which to underline their eyes, while men with burnt-dyed hair try out socks, which they use in place of signatures.

Wearing U. S. Uniform

A man, upon delivered in the navy, received from a clothing outfit to the value of $300. After discharge, the uniform suit he wore for three months. Men are allowed to keep their equipment.

GUARDS TAKE NO CHANCES WITH HAUPTMANN

HAUPTMANN PRODUCES A GRIN

As though to bolster his own defense with as brave a show as possible in the face of the strains to which he has been subjected during his trial, Bruno Richard Hauptmann summoned up this grin for photographers at the courthouse. (Associated Press Photo)

Traveling to the Moon
Assuming such a planetary journey possible, the time required would depend upon speed of course, says Pathfinder Magazine. Theoretically, a visitor from the earth traveling at an average of 100 miles per hour should arrive on the moon about the ninety-first day after leaving the earth—if the trip were timed so as to arrive when the surface of the moon would be closest to that of the earth (210,420 miles).

Fossil Remains of Horses
Although the most complete series of fossil remains of horses have been found on the North and South American continents, no horses roamed this hemisphere from the Pleistocene or glacial period millions of years ago up to the Sixteenth century when they were reintroduced by the Spaniards. Baptist Young People Meeting

An enthusiastic group of Baptist Young People numbering about 100 members, of Ulster county, met at the First Baptist Church Tuesday evening. A delicious supper was (autumnally prepared and served by the ladies of the church with Mrs. Grover C. Lasher, chairman, and committee on arrangements, Mrs. Charles Brandt, A. S. Cole. The C. E. orchestra rendered several pleasing selections and singing around the banquet table was led by W. W. Brady. This service following was held in the church with Mrs. Lester E. Decker at the organ.

Edwin L. Martin, president of the Hudson River Central Baptist Sunday School and Young People's Association, presided and expressed appreciation of all guests for the splendid hospitality for which Kingston first is well known and the keen interest shown by the group of young people who are interested in the advancement of the work in the association. The area plan was explained, also the purpose of this gathering to work zealously for the success of the coming annual convention to be held Tuesday, May 14, at Middletown. The adoption of the area plan resulted in the committee submitting the name of Nelson H. Lewis of Wurts street Baptist Church as director. The area includes Saugerties, First Baptist and Wurts Street Churches. A solo was rendered by Mrs. Richard Wagner. A splendid resume of a delightful vacation spent at the summer assembly at Keuka Lake was given by Miss Grace Groves of M. Memorial, Newburgh. This was indeed greatly appreciated. LeGrand Roo spoke on the presidential tour to be held Friday, January 25, at Moulton Memorial Church, Newburgh, with earnest and inspiring speakers. Meetings at 10 a. m. with all day services until 8:30 closing. All are urged to strive to be present at this meeting. Luncheon for men and one for women.

The guest speaker of the evening, the Rev. Forest P. Hunter, pastor emeritus of Middletown Baptist Church, and greatly admired throughout the association, was introduced by the president, Mr. Martin. His inspiring message was deeply appreciated and great interest manifested. Representatives were present from:

Middletown, Newburgh, Walden, Saugerties, Wurts Street, Albany Avenue Baptist Churches.

The officers are as follows: President, Edwin L. Martin, Middletown; vice president, LeGrand Roo, Newburgh; assistant secretary, Miss Dora Pratt, Kingston First; registrar, Mrs. Harry Klothe, Kingston First; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Van Derhoff, Middletown; advisors, the Rev. A. W. Sheekels, Jr., Middletown; the Rev. Clarence E. Brown, Wurts Street Baptist.

This very successful meeting closed with prayer by Pastor Arthur S. Cole.

Ellenville Banks to Have Service Charge

Announcement is made that the commercial banks of Ellenville—the Home National and the First National Bank and Trust Co., will on February first put into effect a schedule of service charges.

For average balances running from $1 to $40, three checks will be allowed for which a service charge of 25 cents will be made. Subsequent checks will be charged four cents each. On larger balances there will be a larger number of checks allowed for the service charge. There will also be a charge imposed for check books and on other items.

Inquiries today brought the information that the Kingston banks are not planning to make any such charges, although the matter has been discussed and some time ago a schedule was proposed, but was never put into operation.

The banking men agree, however, that on small accounts a service charge of some kind is fair and reasonable as many of these accounts are handled at a loss to the banks.

KINGSTON FREEMAN

Mr. Merchant:

We would like to introduce you to our 40,000 daily READERS

There's another angle to that old saying—it's the woman who pays and pays; and that is—it's the woman who buys and buys and buys. Which is an important thing to keep in mind when you realize that this is not only a family paper—but a woman's paper. There are many features on our pages daily, that women look for and follow up consistently through the year.

Your advertising will serve its highest purpose when you place it in this paper; for it will reach the actual buyer for the entire family. It's easy to prove our point. And it's easy for you to co-operate. Phone 2200 and our representative will call at your convenience.

Fashions and Household Hints for Women

Simple Tests to Help Housewives In Getting Their Money's Worth

By SIGRID AIXE

Washington, (AP).—Some simple tests of value which the housewife can apply when she goes to the store to buy have been compiled by the consumers' divisions of AAA and the NEC.

They are designed to show her whether she is getting her money's worth. For example, is her three yards of silk really the pure silk she wants, or is it part rayon or heavily weighted? Are the sheets really linen or do they carry a heavy sizing to make them look thick and feel heavy and durable?

To test fabrics, the officials advise, unravel yarns both crosswise and lengthwise. If two or more kinds of fiber have been used, separate them for the test.

Apply a lighted match to the ends of the yarn. Notice the way in which it burns. Blow out the flame and smell the smoldering yarn. Material which burns easily and gives off a small, liked, burned paper will be rayon, or one of the vegetable fibers, such as cotton, linen, hemp or jute.

Burn Silk and Wool
Cellulose acetate burns a little less readily, and burns back like sealing wax. The ends of the extinguished cellulose yarns will have hard black globules, and the fumes will have a faint vinegar-like smell.

Silk and wool yarns will burn with difficulty and in burning will smell like burned feathers. If the silk is weighted with tin or lead, the metal weighting will not burn, but will leave an ash. When a piece of heavily weighted silk textile is left to burn on a piece of glass or metal it will leave an ash in the form of the material.

Material for sheets may be tested at the counter, but the best way is to take a sample home and boil it for half an hour in soapy water. If the material carries a heavy sizing of china clay or starch, the sample will appear flimsy after boiling. The material sometimes can be tested at the store counter by rubbing vigorously in the hands. The sizing shakes out in the form of white powder and easily is seen on the dark counter.

Many Other Tests

The label "pre-shrunk", under present practice, merely means the fabric has gone through some shrinkage process. It does not guarantee there will be no further shrinkage.

Other tests follow:
To test bath towels push back the pile with a pin or pen-knife. If the warp threads go "under-one-over-one" the towel is low grade. In a better quality towel the threads will pass over-two-under-one, or in some even more complicated weaves.

To test hosiery stretch the top edge. If it extends to 11 or 12 inches the stocking will wear better than those with less stretch.

Check packaged groceries by opening such as contain cereal, spices and spaghetti to see if the "fill" is slack. Check the weight and cost of the packaged goods against the same foods bought in bulk.

Test stainless steel cutlery by pressure with the blade of a good pocket-knife. The pressure will not scratch cutlery which is of good enough quality to hold a sharp edge.

Fashion Favors Jersey

THIS smart afternoon dress is fashioned of metal shot jersey. Emerald and rhinestone clips, which repeat the silver and green of the frock, mark the square-cut neck. A new off-the-face hat of black knitted straw and black kid pumps applied with lizard complete the sophisticated ensemble.

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1571-B

Youthful Frock with Crisp Details

This dress is typical of the interesting clothes we must prepare ourselves to wear at the turn of the season. Necklines are going higher, butterfly bows are spreading out, and elongated epaulettes are substituting for sleeves.

The model shown in the illustration is a perfect fore-runner of the summer styles. Unmindful of the calendar date you are safe in choosing it for one of those gay cottons blooming so irresistibly in the wash-goods department.

Two fabrics are combined in this dress—a floral print, and a plain contrast. The bodice is made with inset yoke, collar, bow, and sleeve bands made of organdie, or sheer lawn. The figured fabric is crisp lawn with a faint daisy design.

Skirts continue to be straight. This one has a godet which gives flare enough for striding without taking its slender appearance away. The bodice is cut high in the armhole, and the sleeve sections super-imposed. This construction insures a silhouette that has width without fullness.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1571-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires about 3 yards of 36 inch material; 1/2 yard of contrast.

Monday: Smart two-piece frock.

Scatter Rugs Come In New Designs To Enliven And Re-style Old Rooms

Deep wool fringe finishes a shaved hooked rug.

By MARGERY TAYLOR

(Copyright, 1935, By McCall's Magazine For The Kingston Freeman)

Is there any more economical way of giving a room new life and new style than by putting a few scatter rugs in the right places?

Perhaps the designers have been inspired by the thought of all the good deeds they could do in a drab world, but they certainly have let themselves go in creating new rugs in sizes, shapes, colors and textures undreamed of before.

Some of us still love the old oriental prayer rug or the colonial wide hooked rug—and we can now get them at amazingly low prices because machines can turn out perfect reproductions.

For those who must watch the budget but can't resist the new, scatter rugs on plain carpeting, tile, rubber or linoleum can give exciting results. In front of fireplace or sofa, over the old green, taupe or blue broadloom, a throw rug in glowing complementary colors and contrasting depth and weave can transform the whole room.

The new colors and textures are even more important than the designs. In fact, there may be no design. It may be only a subtle shadow effect of two or three pile lengths, or it may be one of those unobtrusive modern designs which subtly harmonize with almost any interior.

You'll never believe that some of the newest rugs which decorators rave about are simply old-fashioned hooked rugs—shaved! Shaving leaves a soft deep woolly surface. Shaving in two levels gives a carved or embossed effect. The background is cut like velvet and the design stands out in higher pile; or the raised design is uncut, giving a two-tone coloring in a one-color rug. Deep wool fringe, in one or several contrasting colors, finishes off plain rugs.

Blue, green, yellow and plum in wonderful new shades are most popular—but white is still among the smartest. One interesting white rug is like a wagon wheel, with spokes of heavy wool fringe.

Slipping on rugs may be prevented with mats—some rugs are made with light rubber backs.

broken nutmeats. Arrange the cups on lettuce. Fill with the salad mixture, add the mayonnaise and season to taste, using the orange juice instead of cream to add to the mayonnaise.

Roast Turkey.

Cut strips of fat salt pork and cover the breast of a firm, plump turkey or other fowl. After stuffing place in roaster and broil. During the broiling baste every fifteen minutes with orange juice and lemon juice. Add two tablespoons of lemon juice to a cupful of orange juice while broiling. Use the liquid in the pan also for basting. The fruit juice enhances the flavor, making it more tender.

Prepare and bake a plain sweet cake in a square tin. When cool cut into rounds with a waffle cutter and cover with any creamy frosting. Roll in sliced coconut. Decorate with halves of apricots, sliced dates arranged in design or with bits of marzipan cherries or candied fruit.

Prize Beauty Dons Flaming Crown

All Stockholm Acclaims Winner Of Winter Contest

By ELMER W. PETERSON

Stockholm (AP).—A beauty contest held in the dead of winter, without the benefit of bathing suits, with the winner crowned with a headdress of burning candles, has given blonde, blue-eyed Ella Johansson all the customary offers of marriage and motion picture work.

Miss Johansson now holds the title of "1935 Lucia Queen of Sweden". In accordance with a custom, dating back to the old Roman legend of Santa Lucia from the earliest Christian era.

Rides in White Carriage

She was elected by public voting, and, as winner, was escorted through the streets of Stockholm in a manner that surpassed any Atlantic City beauty parade.

With 200,000 spectators lining the streets, she rode in a white carriage, flaming candles in her crown and a retinue of knights-in-waiting on horseback as escort.

The qualifications of Swedish beauty, as exemplified by Miss Johansson, include wavy blonde hair, rather deep-set clear blue eyes, a remarkably clear complexion, a height of about 5 feet 7 inches, a slender figure, and teeth that have never known a dentist's drill. Her feet are dainty.

Praised by Nobel Winner

She had been pronounced by experts, including Luigi Pirandello, Italian dramatist and Nobel prize winner, who attended the festivities in her honor, to be a perfect Swedish type.

Pirandello called for pen and paper and wrote the following to Sweden's "Lucia":

"To me as a visitor from the land of light, it is deeply touching to witness this cult and this longing for light in a country such as Sweden, which itself possesses so much of spiritual light, and which in such a manner understands to crown those who strive for the immortal light in this world."

Just as present the "Lucia Girl" has her own pet dreams of theatre and motion picture fame.

An old Swedish custom was carried out when Miss Ella Johansson, blonde, blue-eyed, was crowned with flaming candles as 1935's "Lucia Queen of Sweden". Stockholm streets were lined with 200,000 spectators as she rode through them in state.

The Lucia cult in Sweden, as it has developed into modern dress, now includes the ceremony of having one's wife, sweetheart, or daughter, serve breakfast in the bedroom, dressed in flowing white robes and wearing a crown of burning candles.

The effect, to the newly initiated, is to wake with the feeling that breakfast is being served by ghosts attired in flowing white robes and wearing a crown of burning candles.

Household Hints.

To remove fresh cocoa or chocolate stains, sprinkle with water and spread with borax, roll up for one hour, rinse in cold water and wash in warm water with soap.

Lime gelatin salad blends well with carrots or chaps. It looks pretty, too, for winter serving.

That's That

"No say it is best to let bygones be bygones," said Eli W. the sage of Chinatown. "In my humble contemplation, rather elegant and one that blends well with roast, chop or fowl dinners."

Historians say some of the early American Indian tribes celebrated December 22 as New Year's day long before the coming of white men.

Trimes started with cream cheese make tasty parathas for fresh or frozen fruit salads.

For example, why not serve the Chrysanthemum Salad.

Take bright skin-shinned oranges, wash, cut the skins from the blemishes and to the stem end, but not quite through, leaving a small portion to hold the petals in shape. Cut into points to resemble a flower. Carefully remove the pulp and to break the flower. HOLLYWOOD
SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"I haven't been arrested in more than two years now," said Maureen O'Sullivan.

It was not, as an "average" person might have inferred, the boast of a habitual criminal who has reformed.

She was referring only to her improved skill as a motorist.

When she first arrived from Ireland and began plotting herself about Hollywood, Maureen's encounters with the law were numerous.

They were always handing her things called "tickets," and not unjustly, apparently, for Maureen agrees now she was "a menace to human life on the highways."

Well, that's one thing that she years in Hollywood have given the O'Sullivan girl. She can drive a car, and that—many a traffic cop will attest—is important enough. But other things have come her way, too, chief of which is that Hollywood is giving her a belated hand.

Started at 17

Coming to play the girl in John

McCormack's picture, "Song O' My Heart," Maureen was 17, shy, and sweet, but Hollywood kept telling her she was no actress, which is the reason Maureen stayed to prove she was. After a year and a half under contract to Fox, she was released.

"There was no particular reason for my staying here," she says, "except that they had let me go. I might have gone back to Ireland and I'm sure I'd have had a much better time. Since they fired me, I refused to go. Just the perversity of human nature, you see."

Nearly two years of Maureen's life were spent on the making of two

"Tarzan" films with Johnny Weissmuller. Then she became the heroine of a western thriller, and was in fair way to become the "outdoor type."

What really brought her to the front was her role in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." She hopes it will mean more parts like it, but—

"Richelieu" Lead Next

"Here I am," she says, "the girl who waves at the airplanes in 'West

Point of the Air.' I don't know what will come next, one never can tell."

(It's the feminine lead in "Richelieu" with George Arliss, in case she hasn't heard yet.)

In a year and a half, when she's

25, Maureen will retire from films, she says. She may get married to John Farrow, writer, even before then.

"But I've waited four years without doing anything really in pictures, and I think I'd be silly to leave now when there is some promise that I may do something."

"I think" she says with wide-eyed seriousness. "Women were made only to be wives and mothers, and anything else is just a waste of time.

But I do want to make some money of my own—I haven't saved any yet

—and so quit now would be like leaving the tap running. I'd hate that."

Believe Aged Man Hiking To Florida

Suffield, Conn., Jan. 19 (AP).—The theory that Richard Loomis, 51-year-old member of an old Suffield family, was hitch-hiking to Florida to inspect some property was advanced today by members of his family.

The possibility that the missing man, last seen Monday, had been kidnapped was virtually ignored by the Loomis family. They were fortified in this stand by an agent of the United States department of justice, who after a preliminary investigation said there appeared little, if any reason, to entertain the kidnapping theory.

Several years ago, Loomis inherited an estate valued at $250,000, members of the family said. The estate included some property near Tampa, Fla., and they suggested the possibility that Loomis suddenly decided to examine his Florida holdings.

NBC Artist to Be at Clintondale Monday

Bradley Kincaid, NBC radio entertainer, will feature a program at the Clintondale Methodist Church, Monday, January 21, accompanied by his wife, who will join him vocally in his retinue of songs and numbers on the guitar.

Besides Mr. Kincaid, who has been on the air for seven years, there will be a reading by Prof. Bruce Bennett of New Paltz Normal School; violin solo by Mr. Berrago; trumpet solo by Elaine Kniffen, a Normal student, accompanied on the piano by Blanche Gulnac, a student friend; piano solo by Henry Black of Modena, and a male quartet of Clintondale.

Starting time of the entertainment is 8 o'clock. Tickets are on sale in Clintondale and surrounding communities, and are expected to be all sold by the time the entertainment goes on as many seem anxious to hear Mr. Kincaid, personally.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Carl Eric Linden expects to return from New York Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Purcell have returned from a stay in Boston.

Miss Isabel Doughty has returned from the Tennessee valley where she was studying the undertakings there. She is in New York at present, where she expects to spend a part of the winter. She will also visit Woodstock.

Children interested in a choral society under Miss Winifred Haile have until Tuesday to make their applications with Mrs. Besse Cohn.

Miss Winifred Haile and her uncle, Eugene Schleicher, swept the snow off of the Jack Horner Shop roof Thursday, ending the task with a snow ball fight, with Miss Haile on the roof and Mr. Schleicher on the front terrace.

On Thursday evening, January 24, the American Legion Post and Auxiliary will entertain the Uster County Post and Auxiliary Units of the Legion at Odd Fellow Hall in Bearsville. Woodstock enjoys the reputation of being delightful hosts and the members feel that this meeting will equal, if not surpass, the others held here. Mrs. Ethel Mellen, third district chairman of the auxiliary and Jack League, third district commander of the Legion, are expected guests.

The Rev. Harvey I. Todd went on Thursday to Kingston to meet Mrs. Wyckoff who intends to return in a few days to continue her visit in Maplewood.

The games at the Community House will be held Saturday at 7:30 p. m. There will be games provided by the P. T. A. as a beginning of the use of the Community house as recreation house for the young folk of Woodstock.

The minstrel show planned by the men of the Reformed Church is well underway and will be produced some time in February.

An important meeting of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club will be held in Firemen's Hall on Monday evening, January 21 at 8 p. m. All members, whether members or not, are invited to attend this meeting which will be devoted to the improvement of hunting conditions in this neighborhood.

The Boy Scouts are busy getting ready for their annual rally, February 22 at the Kingston Armory. Numerous events are planned.

The Choral Society has decided to use the kindergarten building for their headquarters. The weekly Monday meetings will be held here.

There will be a meeting of the Missionary Society of the Reformed Church on Thursday afternoon of next week, probably at the home of Mrs. Elida Rissley.

The Mount Horeb Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons was entertained at the Masonic Hall in Kingston recently by A. J. Farrell who presented a few sleight of hand tricks and a rube act; and by Mrs. L. V. Simpkins, soloist.

The consistory of the Reformed Church will hold a card party in the church house, Tuesday evening, starting at 8 o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

Gas, 7 Cents Per Gallon

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—Buffalo motorists today could fill a ten gallon tank with gasoline for 71 cents, including 40 cents state and federal taxes. Prolonging the three month old price war between independents and the big oil concerns, one large distributor of tank car gas slashed his price to 7.1 cents a gallon while all others posted prices from 10.5 cents to 11.5 cents, the latter figure being city-wide for brand oil products.

First Cannon Tubes of Metal or Made of Wood

Early war engines included the catapult, employing twisted fiber or hair for propelling power; the ballista, a largesized catapult, and the onager, a machine employing the principle of the springboard for projecting missiles, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. A small catapult had a range of about 400 yards, a larger and heavier one a greater maximum range. Missile engines took various forms as they were developed up to the time of the invention of gunpowder, though it is doubtful whether any of them had a greater range than the 1,000 yards of the superengines invented by Archimedes. The introduction of gunpowder into the business of war in Europe early in the fourteenth century changed completely both weapons and missiles, though the change was not so abrupt as might be supposed. For a long time, for instance, the old missile engines remained almost the equal of early cannon, and the longbow stood as superior to the earliest small arms employing powder. Cannon were invented before muskets and pistols. First cannon were called bombardards and were nothing more than tubes of metal or tubes of wood bound with metal. These bombardards, some of which were constructed to great proportions and capable of hurling missiles weighing as much as 1,900 pounds, had a maximum range of not more than 2,000 yards, a majority, however, shooting extreme distances of much less than that.

Palestine Battleground of Countless Opposing Hosts

Standing always at the crossroads of Africa and Asia, it has been Palestine's fate to serve as a battleground of foreign hosts and as a center of turbulent passions, notes a writer in the Washington Post. The succession of majestic figures that have moved across the canvas of the Holy Land, portrayed in the powerful narratives of the Old and New Testaments, have kept this land yet the Land of the Bible. In Palestine there are unforgettable contrasts in attire, speech, habits and manner of life. The Bedouin in flowing garb drives a line of solemn camels in stately caravan side by side with the speeding automobile and within sound of the droning airplane. Four thousand years of history link up the Palestine of today with the Canaan of old. In the Bedouin one sees the wild and free shepherds of the days when Canaan was a pastoral land. The Arab peasant may well be the prototype of the tiller of the soil of yore. In the Christian Arabs of Bethlehem and Nazareth one will recall the picturesque epoch of the Crusaders. And in the industrial and agricultural activity of the Jews is the era when Israel was a nation. It is only from the Fourteenth century B. C. that Palestine's history becomes more definite. In the ensuing centuries many changes have taken place, yet through the ages, each fresh chapter of its history has been recorded, to remain a part of the mysterious East.

The Palestine Horse

The term palomino is simply one word used to describe the painted horse, that is, a horse showing regular markings of white and black or white and another color. In some instances of three colors. The painted horse so common in the West is a descendant of the Spanish horse brought to America by the Spanish conquistadores. The striking coloration has not come from any careful breeding. On the contrary horses of this type are allowed to run on the range for a part of the year as a rule, and their breeding has been rather a matter of chance.

The city of Norfolk, Va., began the new year clear of debt, having paid $2,500,000 in current indebtedness since January 1, 1933.

Charles T. Andrews, Adjudged two months.

Mary Dougherty, 122 O'Neil street, Kingston; James S. Foster, Inc. Award 5-17-22 to 1-19-35 at $7.23, and adjudged six months. Fee of $25 to William Kaercher.

Martin Lynch, Creek Locks, Town of Rosendale. Adjudged, examination one month.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—West Virginia's senator-elect, 23-year-old Rush D. Holt—had all sorts of advice as to what he should do until he reached his senatorial majority of 30.

Senator "Jim Ham" Lewis of Illinois, for example, suggested that he act as "commissioner" for the state of West Virginia until he was of senatorial age.

The veteran George Norris of Nebraska was represented as believing that young Mr. Holt could take his seat regardless of his senatorial majority.

When the present congress opened, however, Senator-elect Holt merely presented his credentials as "elected," sat in the rear of the senate chamber while other "elected" senators were sworn in, then caught a train for Charleston, W. Va., where the state legislature was meeting in biennial session.

Keeping In Practice

REPORTS drifting back to Washington are to the effect that while Holt was deprived of exercising his talents as a legislator in the United States senate he is keeping in practice back home.

He has no official connection with the West Virginia state legislature but he has made one. As a member of that body (the left

It is not for the senate) Holt was chairman of a committee to investigate the public utilities in the state. He credits that assignment as being a major factor in his successful contest for a seat in the senate.

He now is engaged in assimilating the information his committee gathered and whipping it into shape for presentation to the legislature. There's no hurry.

As a matter of fact he has until June 19, 1935—the date when he will have reached the age of 30 and the constitutional age requirement for taking his oath as a member of the United States senate.

Birthday Gifts Certain

WHEN June 19 does roll around for Mr. Holt he will find that although absent the senate hasn't forgotten him.

His official residence on capitol hill at the present is a one-room affair on the second floor of the senate office building.

But for a birthday present he'll get:

(1) The suite of offices now occupied by the senior senator from Pennsylvania, James J. Davis ("Puddler Jim") as he is known on capitol hill, a cabinet member under three presidents; and

(2) A check drawn on the United States treasury for back pay from January 3.

They indicated they would be married this month by Rabbi Sund. Mr. Levine, a son of Hyman and Anna Klein Levine, was born in Ellenville. The bride was born in New York, a daughter of Philip and Gusle Rand.

In County Granges

Community Frolic

Stone Ridge Grange will be host at a community frolic on Friday evening, January 25. Anyone living in the community is most cordially invited to attend and spend a happy evening with friends and neighbors.

A program beginning at 8 o'clock will feature some well known Grange artists who will broadcast from station "F-U-N." Following this there will be jolly games, lively square dances and dreamy waltzes. Cards and dominoes will be provided for those of more sedate tastes. Delicious refreshments will be on sale.

A good will collection will be taken during the program.

Lake Katrine Grange

The Lake Katrine Grange will hold a regular meeting at the Grange hall on Monday evening, January 21.

NEW YORK CITY PRODUCE MARKET

Magnates Evolve Plan For Braves, Frick Expects Settlement Feb. 5

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Boston Braves—like the Dodgers—are still very much in the National League.

That was the substance of the information given out after the National League Club owners deliberated for nearly 12 hours over the financial plight of the Boston club, whose playing field seemed about to be usurped by a dog-racing enterprise.

Called into special session to aid in the rescue of a charter member of the circuit, the magnates finally evolved a plan which, they said, should enable the Braves to continue operation on a firm financial footing. No details of the plan were announced, pending completion of the arrangements with "certain parties" who were not represented at the meeting, but the formal statement assured Boston fans that they would be satisfied with the outcome. Ford Frick, league president, said he expected the entire situation would be cleared up at the league's scheduled meeting February 5.

Have Lease On Field
All indications pointed to the continued operation of the club at Braves Field by President Emil Fuchs and under the guidance of Manager Bill McKechnie.

Fuchs said the entire discussion was concerned with financial details and that there had been no talk of permitting dog racing and baseball to go hand in hand.

"We're not going back to Braves Field," he said, "because we've never been out of it."

"This talk of our being homeless was silly. We have a lease on the field which runs until 1946 and it's still in force. The dog-racing people have no lease on the park and they can't force us out without one."

Only For Record
An earlier resolution re-affirming the stand that National League baseball games would not be played in any place where dog racing was permitted was voted upon merely to get that attitude into the records, he said.

Although the company controlling Braves Field, to which the club is reported to be some $11,000 in arrears on rental, had announced an agreement to lease the field to the dog-racing syndicate, Fuchs scouted the possibility of the club's being forced out. Previous it had been suggested that the Braves might move to the Fenway Park but Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, refused to consider such a possibility.

No Policy Changes
Outside of the new financial set-up, there was no indication of a change in the Braves policies. The suggestion that Babe Ruth might be brought in as managerial assistant to Bill McKechnie was pushed further away when Fuchs said "McKechnie is my manager" in firm tones which seemed to defy anyone to challenge the idea. He said plans for spring training are already under way and four or five players have been signed.

The Babe in Paris Years for Home

Goes Unrecognized by Frenchmen as He Walks Streets—Visits Boys' Show and Has Had Pith to Him—Gets Thrill Out of Horse.

Paris, Jan. 19 (AP)—Babe Ruth is homeless.

Now on the closing stages of a world tour, the great home run slugger is "sick of foreign languages, sick of foreign money" and "aching to get back to New York."

It remained for Paris to hand him his biggest jolt. Here he passes along the streets unrecognized, the special attention that usually follows him wherever he goes is missing. The average Frenchman never heard of him.

He has done little or no sight-seeing since he has been here. He ducked one tour by going to an American boys' school where he got one lad to pitch to him while he batted.

"You know, some of those American kids born over here never so much as saw a baseball game," he said.

But if Paris has disappointed him, it likewise furnished him with his biggest thrill of the tour. Let him tell it:

"Mrs. Ruth and I were coming along the street and all of a sudden I yelled for Mrs. Ruth to stop. What do you think we saw? There was a horse with his hind legs crossed."

Coaches Can't Agree On Position of Basket

"Phog" Allen of Kansas Would Hoist Him to 12 Feet to Forefront Tall Towers—Talk of Moving Backboards to Save Throw-Ins.

By CHARLES GRUMICH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Kansas City (AP)—Opposing schools of thought in two midwestern basketball capitals will lay their pet schemes to make the game more appealing to the spectator and more fair to the players—long and short—before the next meeting of the national rules committee.

They are lined up in diametrically opposed camps, one holding that scoring should be made more difficult and the other that it should be easier.

The first definite move was made by Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen of the University of Kansas, who had his team play two experimental games with the baskets hoisted to a position 12 feet above the floor, two feet higher than the official level.

He sought to forestall the tall centers and forwards, whom he terms "dunkers" because of their ability to leap up and drop the ball through the hoop.

Few agreed that the baskets should be raised, among them Dr. James Naismith of the University of Kansas, who started it all by halting a pair of peach baskets 10 feet high at opposite ends of a gymnasium in Springfield, Mass., nearly a half century ago.

A Tip From Sarazen?
However, Allen insists the baskets will be raised within the next five years, although probably not the full two feet he originally proposed.

A leader in the opposite camp is Coach George Edwards of the University of Missouri, who with several other coaches is experimenting with a present-height basket of 20 inches in diameter, two inches larger than official size, using the same idea Gene Sarazen had a few years ago when he proposed that golf should be made easier by doubling the size of the cups.

Allen points out that adoption of larger baskets would necessitate wholesale replacements all over the country and that the same results could be obtained by reducing the size of the ball, which, he asserts, would also help the proponents of larger scores by facilitating ball-handling. He also points out that the diameter of the ball has been trimmed three inches in the last five years.

Bankboards Moved, Too!
Craig Ruby of the University of Illinois, who joined Edwards in the larger-goal, more-scoring experiment, now expresses belief, Allen says, that the goals should be raised at least six inches. Ruby's conversion to the Allen belief resulted from another innovation tried in the 12-foot basketball game.

The bankboards were moved from the present station two feet inside the end boundaries to a point six feet inside the court. This was favored by a majority of those balloting on the proposals and is likely to be adopted generally. The change is designed to reduce the number of time-wasting throw-ins from out of bounds when a goal is attempted and missed.

Ruby points out that with the bankboards farther inside the court, the angle of incidence of a pass being thrown in when the ball does go outside behind the board will necessitate greater clearance between the floor and the bottom of the board.

Among the experiments being studied are the Pacific coast conference's "no-jump" rule and the counting field goals as three points on the theory that they should enjoy a 3-to-1 ratio to free throws.

Morrison Accepts Job As Vanderbilt Coach

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 19 (AP)—Vanderbilt University's weeks of suspense concerning its next head coach of football are over—Ray Morrison has accepted the job.

The master of the forward pass sent word yesterday, after several weeks of consideration, that he was "happy to accept" the post vacated by Dan McGugin. Morrison leaves Southern Methodist University after 15 years of service in which he made S. M. U.'s "aerial circus" known from coast to coast.

It was McGugin who coached Morrison during his own playing days at Vanderbilt, when he was an All-Southern quarterback.

No announcement of Morrison's salary or length of contract has been made, but it was understood he will receive $19,000 a year.

FAVOR TREATING ATHLETES AS ORDINARY STUDENTS

Atlanta, Jan. 19.—The committee on reorganizing of the Association of American Colleges, endorsed as favoring the same treatment for athletes as ordinary students, pressed its campaign today against subsidizing of athletes.

The committee's stand was taken in a report to the association convention. After the college executives heard the committee say "all students should be treated alike as regards scholarships, grants-in-aid, loans and jobs," President Charles K. Turck of Centre College, Danville, Ky., chairman of the committee, said the group would continue its efforts to eliminate subsidizing.

Dr. Turck said the campaign would center on certain competitive areas but he did not name them.

ROSS FAVORED OVER KLICK FOR TITLE

Weight Agreement Gives Lightweight Champ Advantage

KLICK MAY SURPRISE

Ross Not So Great As He Has Shown Thus Far.

Barney Ross will risk his mythical junior welterweight title at Miami Thursday evening. Barney's opponent will be Frankie Klick, the Ukrainian scrapper from the Slot district of San Francisco. Ross will be the odds on choice to whip his adversary in decisive fashion and possibly stop him before the 10-round limit is reached. It is all in the way you look upon Barney's prowess with the padded mittens. Klick is not a setup by any means. He has the distinction of holding Ross even in 10 rounds. Those who doubt the wisdom of that verdict point out that the scrap was held in Frankie's home town and allowance should be made for the officials favoring a Native Son. But Klick silences all such nonsense by stepping up and signing to fight Ross for little or nothing and at a weight which gives Barney every physical advantage. This is nothing new to Klick who has been fighting mostly for glory during the past two years. The Frisco battler is a puzzle to sticklers for weight agreements.

It matters not to him if the fight is held at 125 pounds or 140. He sheds weight or puts it on with equal facility and strangely enough does not impair his fighting ability.

Barney's Bitter Lesson
Ross has been a fighter from the day he first saw the light of day in New York's lower east side. It was tough and go for the elder Rasofsky trying to assuage the pangs of hunger and keep seven little Rasofskys in clothes. Relatives in Chicago induced Mr. Rasofsky to make his home there. Barney was but 12 years old when he tasted the first bitter iron of life. Returning from school one day he saw a large crowd gathered in front of the little store of his father. Pushing his way through the startled eyes he beheld the outstretched form of his parent, a victim of a hoodlum's bullet. From then on Barney looked at the world in a different light. Chicago's west side began to know a different Rasofsky than the meek little Jewish lad who would walk blocks out of his way to avoid the little toughs who held him in and exacted homage in tasty cakes, candies and whatever else was in the little store. The new Barney stood up to his rights manfully. True he came home with blackened eyes and mashed lips. But not all the time. Soon the toughs took to their heels.

Then came the hard grind. Turning professional he was considered "just another kid from the West Side," until Jackie Fields, then world's welterweight champion, took him under his wing and developed his natural fighting ability. It was a tough road to travel. Purse were small unless he fought on the same card as his mentor-champion, but out of his earnings he was able to send some money home and hasten the return of his younger sisters and brothers to their own home.

Then came the chance to fight Tony Canzoneri for the world's lightweight title. Barney took the fight and the small end of the purse. The fans did not think enough of his chances with the result that he barely made training expenses out of the fight. It was different when he won the fight and title and moved to New York to reap the benefits of his untiring efforts.

Chicagoans did not appreciate Ross until he met and vanquished Jimmy McLarnin. He stepped in where other Jewish fighters of prominence refused to tread. McLarnin had been poison to boys of Jewish extraction. Not even the great Benny Leonard was able to forestall the mighty Irishman's bludgeoning fists. But Barney took the dare and came out of the scrap with the world's welterweight crown. It was the first time in fight history a lad of his weight held both titles at the same time. But there was one jinx Ross could not subdue. The Madison Square Bowl has yet to witness a champion successfully defend his title. Ross succumbed to McLarnin. The fight changed doubtful opinion as to his ability into certainty and there are those who place him on the same plane as the immortals of the prize ring.

BAER BROTHERS ON HAND

To be frank Ross is not as great as he has shown thus far. His work against Tony Canzoneri and Jimmy McLarnin cannot be taken as a true gauge. They are the type of fighters who make a boxer look good.

Despite Barney Ross' rightful claim to headlines he will be overshadowed by the one and only Max Baer and his "kid" brother Buddy. Max and Bud will do their stuff against Tony Canzela and Frankie Simms. It will be fine clowning and still take the edge from the earnest efforts of Ross and Klick.

Baer May Defend Crown in Chicago At Soldiers Field

Champion Thinks He'd Get Better Deal in Windy City—Doesn't Care "Who They Throw in Ring With Me"

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP)—Max Baer, the heavyweight champion of the world, may defend his boxing crown next June at Soldiers Field in Chicago.

An exchange of telegrams between two Chicago promoters and Anell Hoffman, manager of the champion, disclosed today that unless Madison Square Garden acts before the expiration on March 31 of its option upon Baer for a title bout the champion's next full length fight is headed for the windy city.

Nate Lewis and Jim Mullen, Chicago promoters, offered Baer 40 per cent of the gate receipts to meet an opponent satisfactory to the champion and his manager and selected by Illinois Athletic Commission, for a bout in June.

They advised Hoffman they were ready to post $100,000 with the commission as a guarantee.

Appreciates Offer
Hoffman immediately wired Lewis and Mullen his thanks for their offer and added:

"I will know more in a few days what my plans are for the future. I want to assure you I favor Chicago at the present writing for the site of the next title fight. Especially with the unsettled condition of New York commission rules and regulations as to decisions lately and especially score card results of the Baer-Carnersa fight. You'll hear from me soon."

Baer said he didn't care who "they throw in the ring with me but you can bet they'll get the best drawing card."

"I don't like the New York set-up and I don't think I would get a good deal there," the champion said.

Baer, his brother, Buddy, and Hoffman are here awaiting their turns on the Barney-Ross-Frankie Klick junior welterweight title bout in the Miami Stadium January 24.

New Era Seen for Thoroughbred Races

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP)—The open claiming rule lacked only the ratification of three states today to become national racing law and some horsemen said—was in a new era of thoroughbred running in the United States.

The National Association of State Racing Commissioners' convention doomed closed claiming after receiving a warning that leading states would no longer race under the old rule.

Adoption of the open claiming rule was made contingent on acceptance by New York, Kentucky and Texas, association members not represented.

The convention ends today, after the commissioners reach an agreement upon the final controversial point in the 43-page book of rules to govern racing nationally.

Open claiming allows any individual, owner or not, to claim a horse, while the closed rule narrows the privilege to owners in the same race.

WAG FIELD STARTS OPEN AT SACRAMENTO TODAY

Sacramento, Jan. 19 (AP)—A host of more than 100 professionals and amateurs led by more than a score of the country's outstanding players tee off today in the $1,100 Sacramento Open Golf Tournament.

With a cold wind blowing and the long course setup from recent rains, the chances of par number fields were somewhat on the long end of any odds.

Bobsled Run Will Open Today

Albany, Jan. 18.—The Olympic bobsled run at Mt. Van Hoevenburg near Lake Placid will be reopened for public riding tomorrow, according to information received at the Conservation Department office here today. Public riding will be permitted from the mile. It is expected that weather permitting, the entire run will be open to the public on Sunday, January 27th, when there also will be novice races held. The run has been closed since the thaw of a week ago when the heavy rains for three days practically washed the mountainside bare of snow and honeycombed the ice on the curves to such an extent that an almost complete rebuilding of the run was necessary by the Conservation Department employees to get it in shape for the reopening tomorrow.

Ky Laffoon Has Best Scoring Record

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—The phenomenal average of a fraction over 72 strokes for 72 eighteen-hole rounds of golf during 1934 has won Ky Laffoon of Denver the Tadic Trophy for the best professional medal scoring record during the year.

Laffoon's exact average for 77 rounds was 72.26-1/2 strokes round, enabling the Denver shot-maker to come out Paul Raynor of White Plains, N. Y., who averaged 72.13-1/2 strokes for 55 rounds.

The Tadic Trophy, a new award made by Harry E. Radix of Chicago through the P. G. A., was offered to the player who compiled the best medal average playing in at least ten of a stipulated list of tournaments during 1934.

Helen II Welcomes Helen I's Comeback

London, (AP)—"Grand" and "great" were among Helen Jacobs' exclamations upon learning that her old rival of the tennis courts, Mrs. Helen Willis Moody, had taken up serious practice again and expected to be among those present at Forest Hills next summer.

"I think it's wonderful that she's finally recovered from her injury and is coming back to the game," said the three-time American champion. "That will increase interest all around, with her, Dorothy Round and myself all in the running." (Thus Helen ignores her offers to turn professional).

Mrs. Moody's long lay-off since two summers ago, when she injured her back in the final against Miss Jacobs at Forest Hills, should bother her hardly at all, in the champion's opinion.

"Anyone with as wonderful a game as her's should have little trouble getting back to top form."

As to Miss Jacobs herself, she is letting very little grass grow under her feet during her winter in London. She has been practicing almost every day and feels she is playing better than ever in her life.

The champion plans a trip to Egypt in March to play in the championships at Cairo and Alexandria. She also will compete at Paris in a final warm-up for Wimbledon, which she has her heart set on winning.

ODDS AGAINST SHAKUP IN NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—Despite a six-game schedule over the week-end bringing every club in the circuit into action at least once, the shakup is in the National Hockey League.

The closest fight right now involves the struggle of the Boston Bruins to hold their one-point lead over the Chicago Blackhawks at the top of the American section. Both will play once and the Bruins apparently have the easier assignment.

They meet Montreal's Canadiens tonight at Boston and hope for their fourth successive victory over the invaders. Chicago will remain at home to face the Toronto Maple Leafs. International Section leaders tomorrow night and past performance apparently point to a Toronto victory.

Before traveling to Chicago, Toronto will meet the St. Louis Eagles at Toronto tonight while the New York Americans seek to overturn the second-place Montreal Maroons at Montreal.

Sunday's program will be completed by games between St. Louis and the Detroit Red Wings at Detroit and the Canadiens and New York Rangers at New York.

TO BRING OUT EL LAGARTO

Lake George, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Lage George yachtsmen have heard that Commodore George Reis plans to bring out his ancient speed boat, El Lagarto, next spring and dust it off for another spectacular defense of the famous gold cup.

Dr. E. B. Janks, chairman of the Gold Cup Regatta Committee of the Lake George Yacht Club, has announced that the course would be shifted this year to the more sheltered water of Bolton Bay.

Dr. Jenks said he understood Reis had decided not to retire the 14-year-old racer, and would again defend his goal cup championship when the 1935 classic is run, late in July. Reis is now at Pasadena, California.

Testimonial for Edgar Schryver

A testimonial dinner in honor of Edgar E. Schryver, who for 52 years has served with Excelsior Hose Company as its faithful and courteous secretary, will be given at the King Crown Restaurant on Washington avenue on Thursday evening, January 24. This banquet is being given in Mr. Schryver's honor by members of Excelsior Hose Company and friends in honor of the long term of service.

Mr. Schryver has been secretary of the Excelsior Hose Company continuously for 52 years and was recently re-elected for his fifty-third year.

Beside members of Excelsior Hose Company, No. 4, and their friends there will be several distinguished guests in attendance. Mayor Conrad J. Heise, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and Deputy Fire Chief Leverich will be among the local guests. Fire Commissioners Moran, Mullen and Bacharach will also be among the guests and representing the State Firemen's Association will be Chris Noll, president of the Association and chief of the Poughkeepsie fire department. William Frank, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, also of Poughkeepsie, will be a guest of the evening. Others who have accepted invitations to be present are Senator Wickes, Assemblyman Conway, Postmaster Kraft, Roscoe Irwin and James Betts.

Tickets may be procured up until Tuesday from Willis Roe by calling 211 or from William B. Martin at 1119.

A special meeting will be held Monday evening at the engine house at which time final arrangements for the banquet will be discussed. All members of Excelsior Hose Company are urged to attend.

Postal Employees Form Organization

At a meeting held Friday evening at the Central Post Office the Kingston Postal Employees' Association was organized, succeeding a former organization which was headed by the late John J. Tonks. Anthony J. Erena was elected president, Robert Meeker, vice president; secretary, John Purvis; treasurer, Edwin Kittle, and sergeant-at-arms, Louis Reynolds. Robert Carpenter, Harold Johnson and Richard Greene were named as an executive committee to draw up a constitution and by-laws. The association is made up of the postal employees at the Central office and the two branch offices. The association will meet monthly at the Central Post Office. The association voted William Kyer, retired postal employee, a life membership in the new organization.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

BY CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Improvement in steel issues, together with further demand for scattered preferred equities, gave the stock market a fairly cheerful tone in today's brief session. Dealings were quiet, however, and many of the so-called leaders continued narrow. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 370,000 shares.

Otis Steel Preferred shares got up 5 points, Colorado Fuel & Iron preferred advanced 4 and others, up 1 to around 2, included preference stocks of Republic Steel, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Mullins Manufacturing.

Among gainers of fractions to about a point were U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Common, Colorado Fuel & Iron Common, American Rolling Mill, Otis Steel Common, Caterpillar Tractor, Case, Deere, du Pont, United Corp. Preferred, Santa Fe and N. Y. Central.

Such issues as American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific, North American, Western Union, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck recorded only small variations. The Radio Corp. group eased under profit taking after the upturn of yesterday.

lows and Charles Stanley, was next presented and gave two selections.

They have been heard in Kingston before with pleasure and their singing Friday night was greeted with the generous applause it deserved.

The quartet sang some further selections later in the evening.

George C. Sahler of Poughkeepsie, Lieutenant governor of the second division, installed the new officers, enumerating their duties and congratulating the club on the selection it had made and also congratulating the officers on the club they had to serve.

The following are the officers for the present year:

Vice president—Roger H. Loughran.

Treasurer—Harry S. Essig.

Secretary—Clarence S. Schoonmaker.

Directors (3 years)—Barnard Joy, Edward M. Huben, Robert K. Hancock.

Clarence L. Dumm was called upon to present to Harry Halverson his badge as immediate past president. He congratulated him on his fine work as president during the past year. Mr. Halverson spoke of the enjoyment he had had in the work and his appreciation of the honor that had been given.

He spoke highly of the cooperation he had received from officers and members during his term and thanked especially committee chairmen who had stood by him so loyally. He said that the work of the club in providing milk for school children and in its dental clinic had been kept up during the year and at the same time the club had operated within its budget.

Morris Samter, the new president, in assuming the chair, voiced his appreciation of the honor conferred. He promised to assume the duties incumbent upon him cheerfully and to discharge them faithfully and said he desired the confidence and cooperation of every member of the club.

He said that already he was beginning to realize the scope of his work and that it did not begin and end in the club room.

Mr. Samter presented Mayor and Mrs. C. J. Heise and Walter T. Elston, president of Rotary, and Mrs. Elston, guests of the evening.

Mr. Baltz then called upon Roger Loughran, who, he said, had done splendid work as chairman of the program committee during the past year, to introduce the speaker of the evening. Mr. Loughran then presented the guest speaker, Dan Chase of New York city, saying that he was a man who had been singularly successful in training boys, was an expert at handling men and from what he had observed during the evening, "seemed to get along well with the ladies." He added that Mr. Chase was secretary of Kiwanis in New York city and was a former president of the Albany Kiwanis Club.

One of the expressed objectives of Kiwanis, to give first place to the human and spiritual, rather than to the material values of life, formed the subject for Mr. Chase's interesting talk, which was plentifully sprinkled with a collection of stories that kept his audience in good humor from start to finish.

Good Sportsmanship

The thought of good sportsmanship, which the speaker said was needed not only in sports as such but in business, social and family life, was interwoven throughout the address. This was not so strange, considering that Mr. Chase has been identified with sport activities for many years. He is at present secretary of the New York City Baseball Federation, a federation of numerous clubs whose membership is graded from boys of 14 to semi-professional organizations, there being five classifications. Kiwanis contributes six leagues to the federation and there are leagues representing other organizations. Previous to his work in New York city Mr. Chase was for ten years a head of the Roxbury Y. M. C. A., going there in 1909.

The speaker held that the principles advocated by Kiwanis in the realm of human welfare were being exemplified in the movements now underway at Washington. He maintained that social changes that have come about so far are here to stay, that "the code of fair play in industry is a revolution in itself." "Kiwanis," said he, "stands for a code of fair dealing." It must continue to excel in service and there is need that more individuals be educated to the standards set by Kiwanis, the speaker added.

Mr. Chase said that there were "some things in the Russian experiment we would do well to look into." He sees no threat that this government will ever be overthrown by violence, or that there will ever be a bloody revolution.

The reaching of a point in life where man is impelled to service of others and to the exercise of true sportsmanship in his dealing, the speaker found dependent upon right training in the formative periods.

He listed the successive ages in a man's career as—the knee age, the me age, the we age, the she age and finally the "thee" age. In the first there is the training received over mother's knee. In the second, thought is entirely of self, in the third the gang spirit, the Boy Scout complex, is paramount. The "she" age, said Mr. Chase, needs no explanation. Finally if progress has been along right lines, comes the "thee" age and the thought of service to others.

In discussing sportsmanship, Mr. Chase observed that there was also need of inculcating the idea of good sportsmanship, of fair play to the visiting team, among spectators as well as players.

He concluded with the following verse:

Did you have a good game?
That's the test of the day;
It matters not who won at the play,
Was your driving bum, your putting poor?

No harm was done if you didn't get sore.
To keep your temper and play the game;
Count every stroke, forgetting the shame.
Play hard to the end and win with grace.
Or lose if you must with a smile on your face.
That builds friendship, lasting and true.
That is sportsmanship, all life through.

(Incidentally, Mr. Chase is going to get a chance to "make good" on that sportsmanship in golf doctrine. He was overheard, following the close of the program, to solemnly promise members of the Wiltwyck Golf Club that he would visit Kingston in the spring and play golf with them.)
